Provenance:
This collection was transferred to Mercy Heritage Center from the Sisters of Mercy, Auburn, California in 2014.

History:
In 1857, Mother Baptist Russell led a group of five sisters from San Francisco, California to establish a foundation in Sacramento. Three days later, the new community had established a school and began to visit the sick. They soon established St. Joseph’s Academy. In 1861 and 1862, the new community ministered to the residents of Sacramento by boat during catastrophic flooding in the city.

In 1886, the Sacramento community became a congregation independent of its founding community in San Francisco. The Sacramento community began to work in healthcare in 1896, purchasing Ridge Home, which soon became Mater Misericordiae Hospital, and then Mercy General Hospital. In 1986, the Auburn community merged their hospitals into Catholic Healthcare West (now Dignity Health).

In 1940, the Sacramento community moved their motherhouse and novitiate to the city of Auburn. At the bishop’s request, the Auburn community opened a pre-postulancy house in Ireland in 1950 to facilitate new vocations.

The Auburn community remained independent until 1991, when it joined the Institute of the Sisters of Mercy of the Americas. In 2008, the Auburn Regional Community merged with the Burlingame, Omaha, Detroit and Chicago Regional Communities to form the West Midwest Community of the Sisters of Mercy of the Americas.
